2018 NEW YORK COMMUNITY TRUST NONPROFIT EXCELLENCE AWARDS FINALISTS ANNOUNCED

New York, NY, July 20, 2018 – Fourteen nonprofit groups from across the city have been chosen as finalists for The New York Community Trust Nonprofit Excellence Awards for demonstrating excellence in nonprofit management practices. The program, run by the Nonprofit Coordinating Committee of New York (NPCC), will culminate in the inaugural Best Nonprofit Conference, at which winning organizations will be announced.

The Awards recognize innovative and replicable nonprofit management practices. An expert 31-member selection committee chose the 14 finalists from a pool of 36 qualified applicants, following a readiness assessment, in-depth application, and 360-review of all management practices.

The finalists will submit a second round application that demonstrates best practices in each of the Eight Key Areas of Nonprofit Excellence, as well as an overarching organizational commitment to fostering curiosity, equity, and innovation. These organizations will be eligible to win prizes in each of the Eight Key Areas of Nonprofit Excellence. Three finalists will move forward to compete for the prize for Overall Excellence in Nonprofit Management.

During the Best Nonprofit Conference on December 6, 2018, at the Faculty House at Columbia University, winning organizations will be awarded an overall total of up to $50,000 in cash prizes and full scholarships to Columbia Business School leadership programs.

"We are thrilled to be holding the first conference highlighting best practices in nonprofit management in New York City, and to recognize those groups that put excellence into practice every day," said Sharon Stapel, president of NPCC.
